Now is possible automatic creation of svn repos, but Is very very good for webmaster (and their customers) when I create a project a box with:

This project is a web site?

If yes

It create a repos and then create a mongrel config , an apache config, and al rails structure that an rails site can have.

If u want I make a gem for automatic creation and pubblication of rails site through ssh/svn journals

is this needed anymore? I think there are various tools to do that or I am wrong?
